Boilermakers—Chicago style

Here's this year's contingent of Purdue Boilermakers from the Chicago Catholic League. Which only goes to show once again that the rugged Catholic League, year after year, provides some of the great collegiate grid talent in the midwest and elsewhere in the country. Kneeling from the left are: John Zordani, soph, Brother Rice; Tom Kingsbury, soph, St. Rita; Ben McCall, soph, Mendel; Mark Osman, junior, Loyola Academy; standing, from left, Mike Marks, junior, Leo; Steve McKenzie, junior, De La Salle; Steve Krol, soph, De La Salle; and Bob Spoo, first year backfield coach at Purdue, who was head coach at Loyola and played at St. Rita High School.

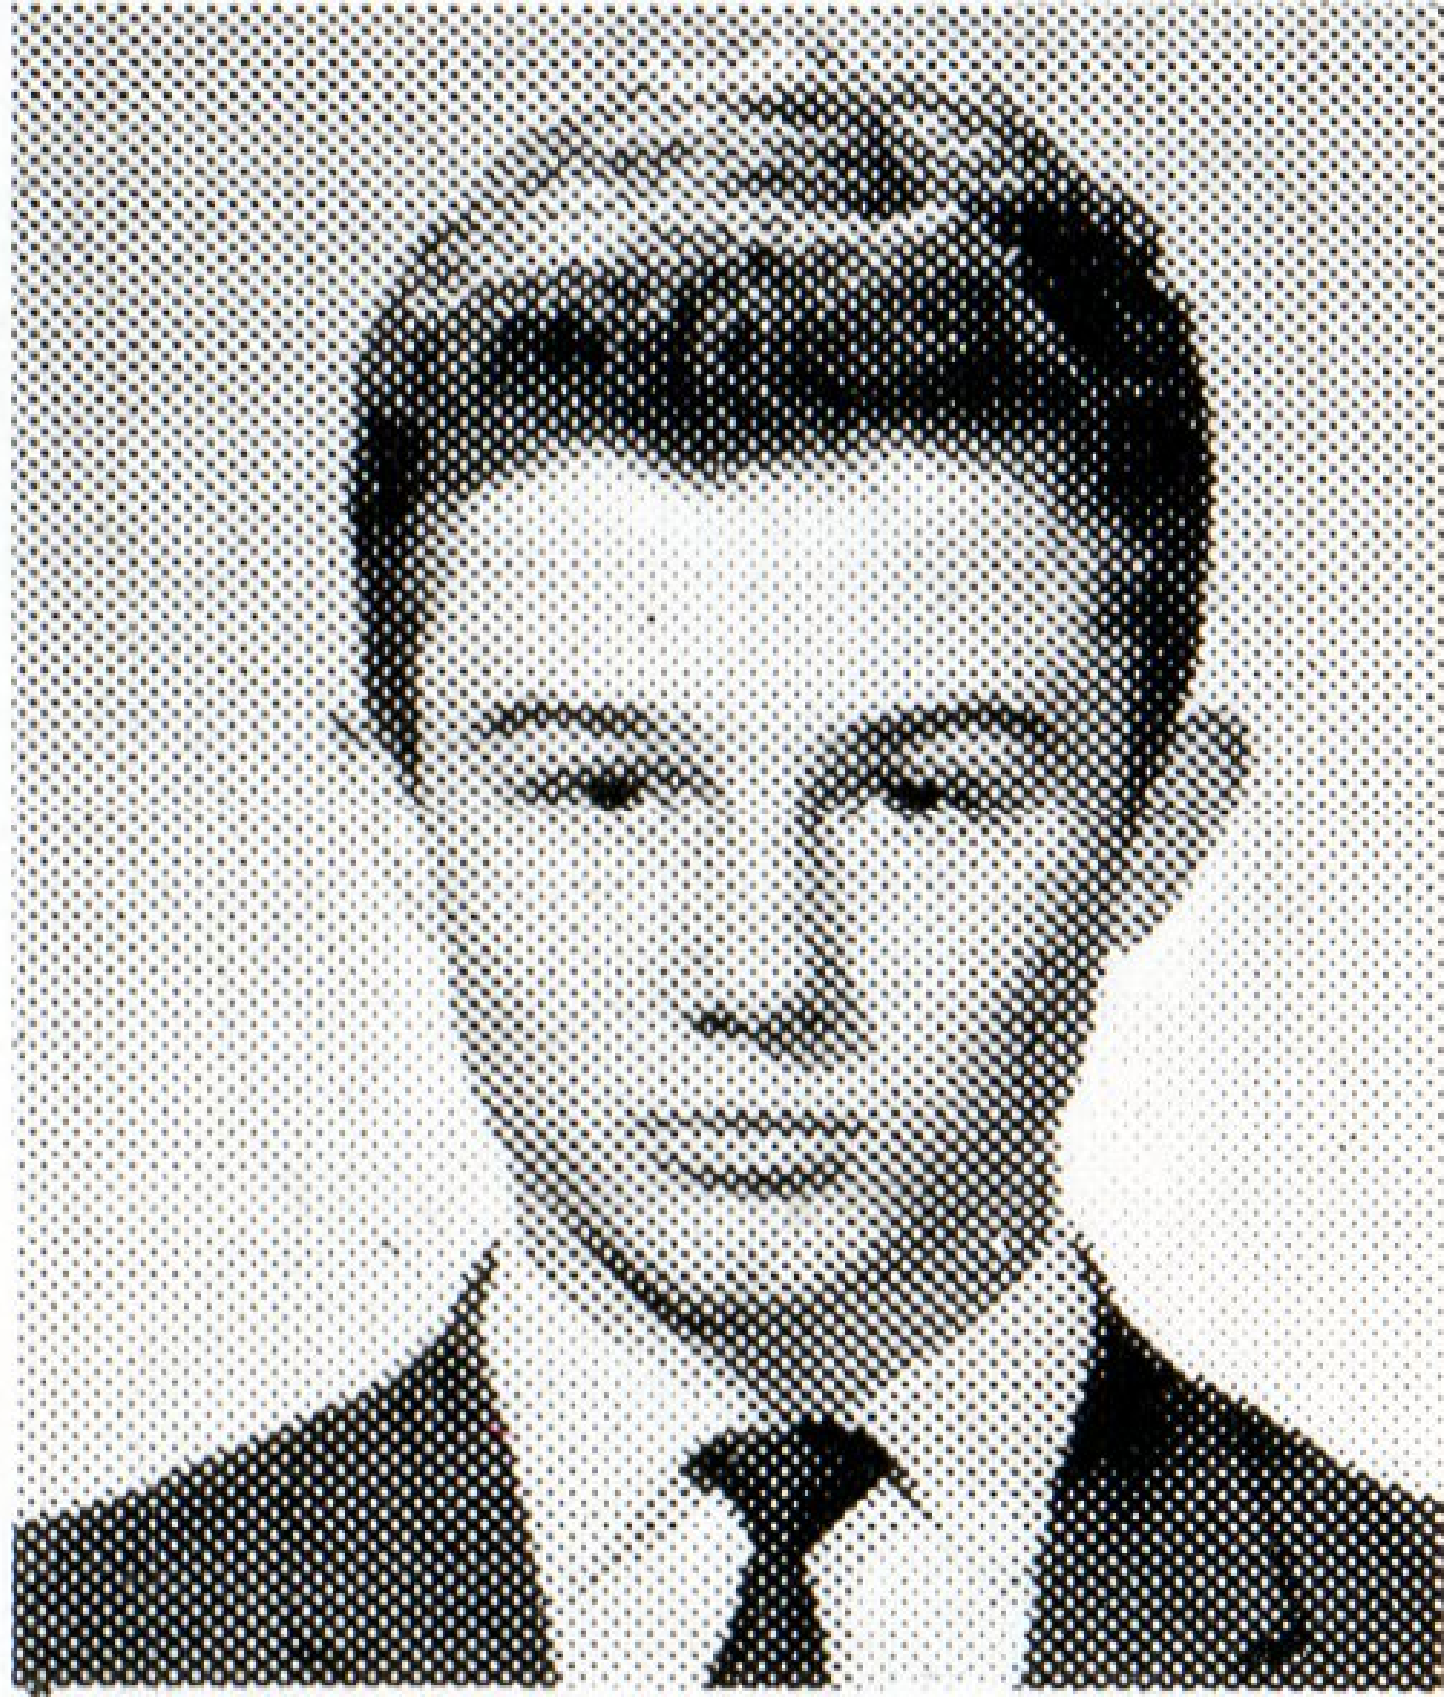

As of now it appears as if McKenzie and Marks, barring injuries, will start when Purdue opens its season at home on Sept. 16 vs. Michigan State in Ross-Ade Stadium. A two-year letterman, McKenzie is considered the Boilers' best offensive lineman. Steve manned the offensive guard spot last year, but this year, at 6-5 and 260 pounds, he has been switched to offensive tackle. As a matter of fact, many already are touting McKenzie as a legitimate All-Big Ten candidate. Marks, who was red-shirted last year, is a leading candidate for the linebacker spot vacated by most valuable player Fred Arrington.
