What Sort of Man Reads the Monarch?

The typical Mendel student, the person who knows what he wants and goes out and gets it.

Amid the turmoil of the present day world, he stands apart, to fend off third world advocates and bleeding-heart liberals. In an age of rocketry, Watergate, social pressure and sex appeal, we know this individual will put forth with all he's got. With a world filled with nabobs of negativism he can go about with the confidence that the instructional material provided by the students and faculty at Mendel and in the MONARCH will make him able to passionately perceive the situation at hand.

It goes without saying that it would be intuitively obvious to the most casual observer that the reader of the MONARCH will be able to deduce logical proofs the likes of which the aspiring logician has never seen.

In conclusion, we safely say that we are able to poignantly project our futures if we can understand the past and present. Already the intelligence of the average Mendel student indeed surpasses that of the majority of those students involved in high school at the present time.

Just think of how tantalizing taste of the MONARCH '75 will revolutionize the thinking of higher education in America and the world.

Therefore, we do salute ourselves, the entire staff of the MONARCH of 1975 A.D.

We hope this year's edition of the perennial Monarch will provide an accurate almanac of the school life here at Mendel. When in the future we look upon the tawny torn sheet, hopefully it will cause a chuckle of laughter, or perhaps a bit of mist will appear in our eyes. Some may regurgitate at the thought; but whatever the reaction, you know that the remembrance of Mendel will have caused it. We hope that the Monarch will be part of that remembrance.

We, the Monarch staff of 1975, would like to dedicate this yearbook, not to one person, but to the entire faculty and administration. At a time when skeptics called Mendel a "dying institution," our tremendously dedicated staff redoubled their efforts to provide quality secondary education for those who desired it; and in spite of the financial plight which necessitates larger classes, the faculty has continued to offer the best learning environment possible.

We would also like to applaud the efforts of the recruiting committee, whose efforts have spelled (and will continue to spell) the difference between the life and death of Mendel.

Finally, we dedicate this book to the students, without whose cooperation with each other, the school could not have survived.

thank you,
The MONARCH Staff '75

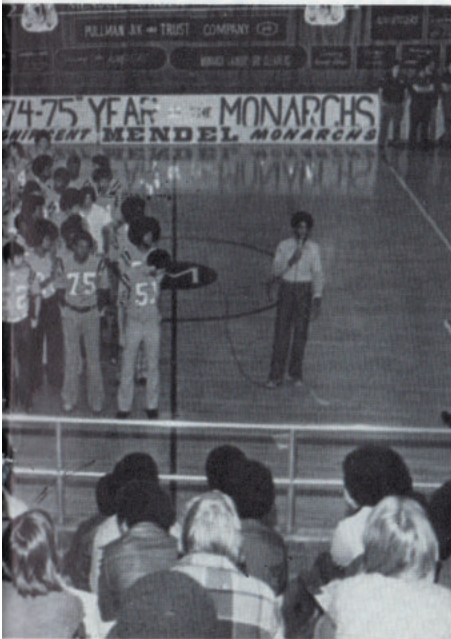

Pep Club

Throughout the year, the Pep Club helped in our pep rallies. It provided a chance for the students to rid themselves of the built-up tension of the day. It was also a center of support for the school teams.

Principal, Mendel

Dear Graduate of the Class of 1975,

You will be missed very much at Mendel. There are similarities between persons and classes. Some can leave your presence and there are no twinges of deep regret or sadness. There are others who are so fine and inspirational that you wish that they would linger and delay the inevitable parting. The latter is my deep feeling for the Class of 1975. But enough of this without explanation. You have found yourself in a four year period that has seen external changes that have rocked the government and precipitated our withdrawal from an unpopular war among other things. At Mendel, the tension of decreasing enrollment, instability, racial transition and other important concerns have affected you and made you mature as you met them and handled them beautifully. The inter-cultural exchange and the calm and talented leadership with intelligent cooperation from the membership of the class have been most gratifying. When asked about the goal and objectives, the class has indicated that wisdom and understanding were top priorities. I cannot compliment such a choice too much nor will I stress the spiritual and acceptable material definition of success that true wisdom and genuine understanding and discernment will specify. You have the beginnings of wisdom, and the evidence of it is in your conduct and success here.

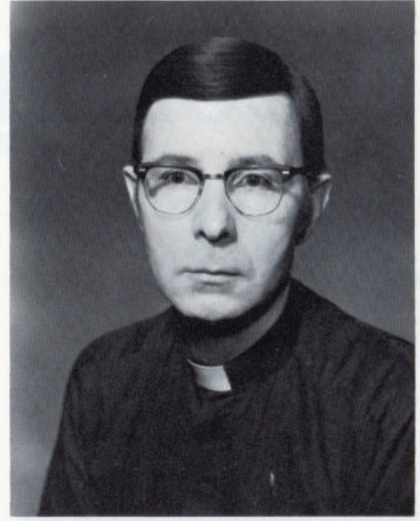

I am sorry that this sounds so formal. I prefer it to be light and fast moving. Somehow, I feel that you have become more mature than your predecessors and hence I can speak more seriously. I feel that you can read between the lines and recognize the gratitude that I have for you as a class and the individuals who have been the catalysts, constructive critics and loyal opposition, too. May you have your wisdom and understanding throughout your lives. And do know that no little degree of those gifts has already been evidence in your Mendel years. Our thanks to you, your parents, your patient faculty guides, and the Spirit whose gifts you have sought and begun to exercise.

Father John Gavin OSA

Fr. William P. Neis O.S.A. is the vice-principal in charge of studies. As director of studies he prepares both student and teacher schedules, handles student registration and records. As the director of activities he coordinates the events of the school.

As one of the vice-principals of Mendel, he has been kept busy with his innumerable jobs. Besides his aforementioned duties, he is also the moderator of the student senate, ski club-camp club, and is also co-moderator of the Mendelian and Monarch.

Fr. Donald Brennan O.S.A. is Dean of Students in charge of discipline. He supervises student attendance and conduct and he directs the enforcement of the school regulations.

Mr. Donald Ledin is this year's Director of Athletics. From his office he directs the school's athletic activities and schedules.

Fr. Edward Andrews O.S.A. as Guidance Director coordinates guidance programs and keeps a careful eye on his students.

Fr. Thomas Martin O.S.A. Director of Religious Affairs, provides a program of meaningful religious education. Class retreats and days of renewal supplement this program. He is also the head of the Theology department.

Theology Dept.

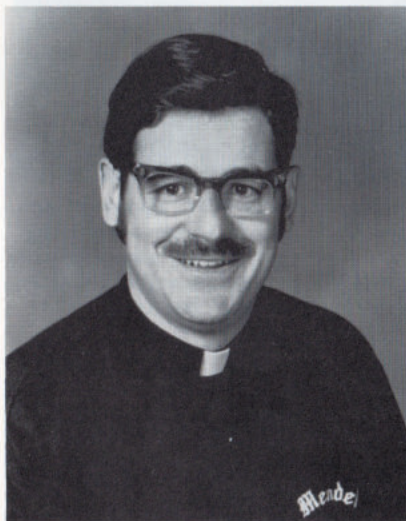

Mendel believes in rounding out a young man's education by a full series of core subjects, English, Math, Science, and Theology, and, of these, the most important for a Mendel Man is Theology. The Theology Department provides the student with a program of meaningful religious education supplemented by class retreats and days of religious renewal. The entire department makes efforts to counsel the individual student in order to provide him with the rigid moral fiber needed by a young man in today's world.

Track

In their first year in state competition Mendel track team was invited to participate in the state track finals. They are one of the few teams to do so after only one season in state competition. In the coaches' poll, Mendel ranked in the top ten out of over 300 schools.

Another addition to their impressive list of achievements is the fact that they took the city championships.

Tony Wilkins, Steve Simington, and Gerald Lee hold individual records as well.

As for the future, there are five returning track team members.

A typical ski day started with the instruction of proper technique by the

Tradition Restored

Yearbook Late

For the first time in five years a yearbook has arrived into the students' hands on time, but that was last year. The staff of this year's MONARCH believes in tradition. We hold highly the ways of the old Mendel, the traditions that made this school so great.

I cannot take the full credit, it was an all around effort. We have strived for the highest quality possible. There are those who might disagree with this policy but a craftsman's excellence takes time.

We hope you enjoy this year's edition. We know we will.

We have special thanks for Mr. Ken Nemsick for his understanding, and for his appreciation for good literature.

Also to Mr. Curtin, Fr. Neis, and Fr. Brennan.

Adios from all of us in the student lounge.

Sincerely,
The '75 Staff

Chess Club

Future Bobby Fishers of Mendel get a chance to try their hand at what they do best whenever the Chess Club meets during lunch time. ↓ Club members sharpen their wits against sparkling competition in hopes of a berth in the varsity lay when Mendel fields a league team.

Body Builders

Under the direction of Mr. Charles Conway Mendel men are afforded the chance for additional physical development and personal betterment. Members must undergo rigorous training and stringent exercise. Sometimes Club members undergo a complete metamorphosis.

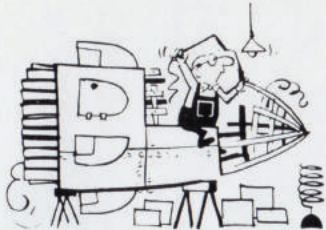

Canoe Club

The Canoe Club is a secretly organized team brought together by the water sports division of the athletic department. Here two unidentified members out practicing on Lake Ichygooscatch-it in Fr. Tymas' canoe for the upcoming meet against Harvard.

Aviation Club

Under the Guidance of the Reverend John Tyma O.S.A., the winged wonders of Mendel get high in the sky. Fr. Tyma, a certified pilot himself, teaches club members the basics of flying. The club serves as a stepping stone and as a basis for which members may one day get their own license. For practice some of the club fly boys can be seen flying low through the student parking lot.

Cheerleaders

Before the game, the girls line up, the captains make sure all's well, and off they go. The captains of the squad are Sue Brennan and Kathy Beaver.

Kathy Beaver

A familiar routine to the Mendel fan is the one above. It's a favorite of both the girls and fans alike.

Design Trends

Events

There are many ways to stay up to date on the latest design trends and events. One way is to attend trade shows and conferences. Another way is to read industry magazines and websites. You can also follow design influencers on social media. No matter how you choose to stay informed, it's important to keep up on the latest in design.

Open House

Mendel holds two open houses during the year. They are arranged and directed by Fr. Donald Harkabus, coordinator of Mendel's recruiting program. This year's events proved to be most successful. Despite the inclement weather on both dates, turnout was considerable. This further boosts the future prospects for Mendel.

Draws Crowds

Mendel on T.V.

This year Mendel was invited to participate on the television show It's Academic. The three students who represented our school were Tony Wilkins, Elbert Robertson, and Mark Kevin. The three super students won on their first appearance but lost the second on a close decision to Evanston.

Junior Week Starts With a Roar . . .

Junior Week began traditionally with the mother-son mass, proceeded with the ring ceremony and concluded with Junior Prom.

Senior Prom '75

This year, the senior prom was held at Villa Olivia, in Bartlett, Illinois. It was an hour's ride, but was considered well worth it, as everyone enjoyed the night. The Mendel Men were truly gentlemen indeed and they wore ear to ear smiles as they proudly escorted their dates.

On Friday night May thirty, 1975, Mendel High School graduated one hundred and sixty-seven seniors. The event was presided over by Fr. William Neis O.S.A. Director of Studies at Mendel.

Reverend John Gavin gave his customary address in which he stated that the class of 1975 was indeed one of his favorite classes. He went on to say that although Mendel has gone through a crisis period the school has turned the corner.

The featured speaker of the evening was the Reverend John L. Seary, founder of Mendel High School celebrating his twenty-fifth year at the institution.

Class Officers

Over the past four years we have seen stellar examples of leadership, with no exception of this year's officers. To attain great influence over the faculty and administration has been no mean feat. Our president, Anthony Wilkins, has been a perfect example of leadership, never abusing his power for personal gains, but always concerned for the good of the entire class. Along with his cohorts: Michael Drzewiecki, Gary Schouten, and John Knowbel, they have penetrated within a realm unknown to their predecessors. Careful manipulation of seating at prom, and sparkling achievements in the student senate are only two of their well-known escapades. Without their backing, we might all have lost our shirts.
