Today is a day of mixed feelings. I am very happy to see you successfully reach your goal of graduation from Mendel Catholic Preparatory High School. I am happy to see you set another goal to further develop your God-given talents and gifts.

Today is also sad for me. I do not like to see you leave us. Over the past four years, I have come to know and love many of you very much. You have become very much a part of our Mendel Family. You are among the finest Christian gentlemen to be found anywhere. I will miss you, but I know you will always be part of Mendel as faithful alumni.

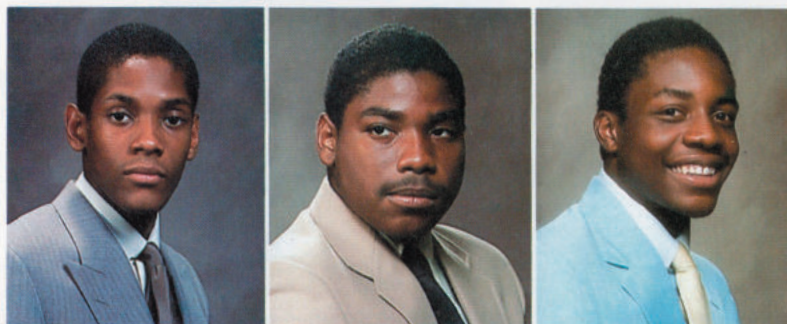

And so, with a sense of both joy and sadness I bid you farewell for now, good luck, and God's blessings.

SPECIAL EFFECTS: ACTIVITIES

Just as the students in the New York Academy of Performing Arts display their talents, the students at Mendel and other Chicago area schools have the chance to display theirs. These skilled singers, dancers, actors, and musicians participate in Mendel's Annual Talent Show. Each year, the best talent competes for cash, prizes, and FAME!

Fame!

1. Mr. Eanes and the band display their musical skills at the talent show.
2. Feltron Bowers and Terrence Pillar harmonize to form a duet.
3. The best young talent in Chicago strive for these trophies, and FAME!
4. Greg Shahid is proud of his performance.
5. Mr. Eanes gets into the groove as he displays a little of his own talent.
6. The spectators await the announcement of the winners.

Academy Awards Night

As Hollywood has its Academy Awards, Mendel has its own night to give recognition for excellent performances during the last four years.

At Mendel, Awards Night is more than just receiving a trophy or seeing your name on a plaque. It's a night to reflect on your achievements and to take pride in graduating from Mendel.

1. Fr. Stobba inducts Edward Coleman to the National Honor Society.
2. This is a time to be proud for the Mendel faculty.
3. Mr. Thomas prepares students for the future.
4. Mr. Adams commends his athletes.
5. The band gives an award winning performance.
6. Mrs. Ellison, the President of the Parents' Club, tells what it means to be a Mendel parent.
7. Enough with awards; it's time to eat!

High Society

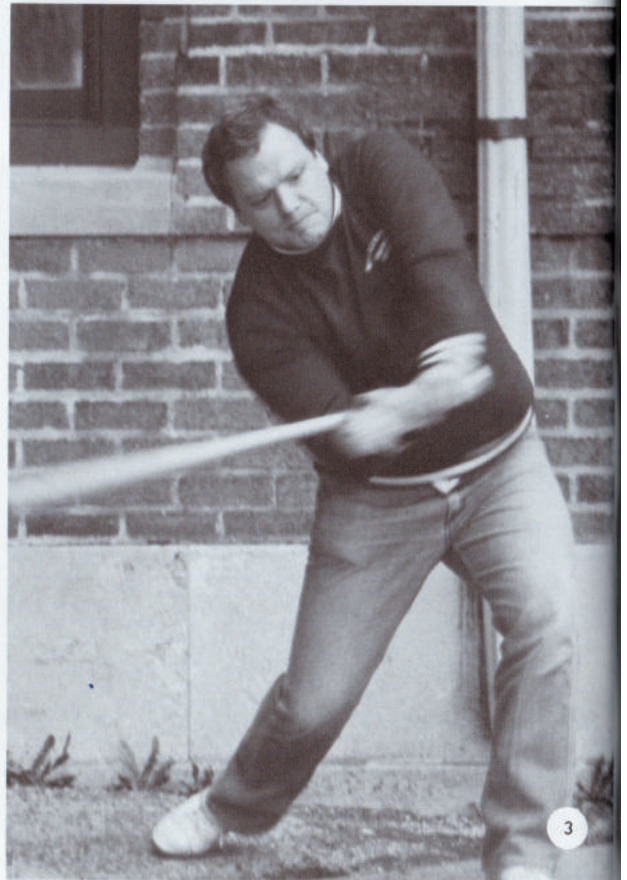

Just as Hollywood has its fashionable moments, we too at Mendel have our own . . .

. . . Last year, the Juniors experienced Jr. Week. The activities included the Father-Son Ring Ceremony, the Mother-Son Mass, and finally, Jr. Prom. These activities are designed to bring the student and parent closer together as he prepares for his Senior year. These Jr. Week activities were coordinated by the Jr. Class Moderator, Mr. Martin Bush.

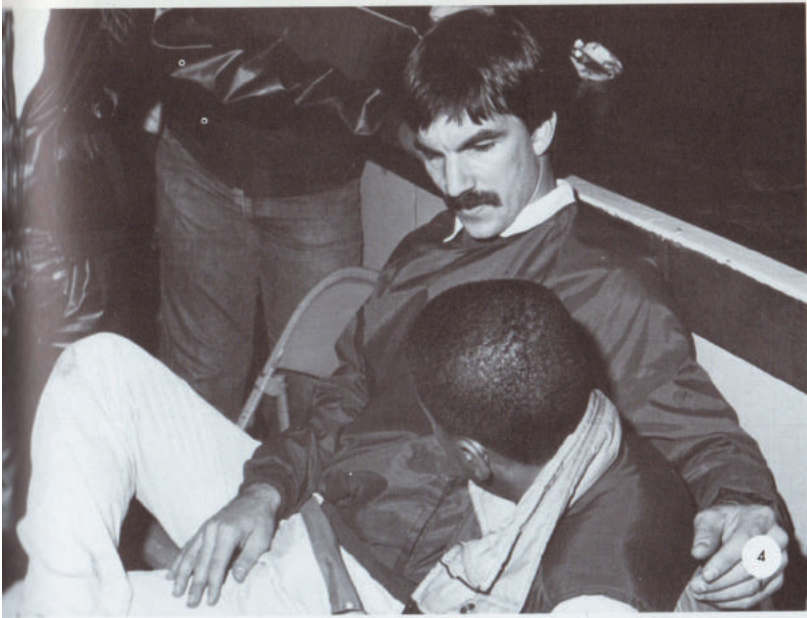

1. Phillip Redmond and Brian Lloyd await their class rings.
2. Victor Eaton recites the word of the Lord.
3. Johnny Lynch and William Fleshman relax at prom.
4. Michael Coburn is amazed that he's at Prom!

The Body Snatchers

Weird tales abound in science fiction and horror films. In a classic one, The Body Snatchers, (1945), pied pipers of macabre lure people to new experiences . . .

Mendel too, has its tales of the supernatural and these take place in the Recruitment Office. Here, our own pied piper, Mr. Manderino, searches the city for the type of student Mendel is searching for, a young man with intelligence, a sense of responsibility and an eye to the future. Through such activities as open house, Olympic Day, the basketball tournament, and the math contest, Mr. Manderino successfully lures the best of Chicago to Mendel.

1. Winfried Cooper fits an eager eighth grader in a Mendel jersey.
2. Grammar school students take a moment to enjoy the Christmas dance sponsored by the Recruitment office.
3. Mr. O'Connor demonstrates proper batting stance to impressionable grammar schoolers.

4. Mr. Manderino counsels a future student.
5. Mr. Adams keeps an accurate record of the proceedings at Olympic Day.
6. He dreams of leading Mendel downstate in '88.
7. Mr. Manderino commands a captive audience.

Footloose, released in 1984 and starring Kevin Bacon and Lori Singer, was a movie about a group of teens in a small town high school who were restricted from most fun-filled activities. The students finally had their first major affair — a dance — and they "cut loose," having fun and enjoying themselves for the first time.

During the 1984 Mendel Homecoming, the Monarchs "cut loose" also, breaking away from their normal everyday routine to celebrate Homecoming Week — "Mendel Style." The week was highlighted by games during the 4th and 5th lunches, a button design contest, a massive pep rally, a parade down King Dr. to Gately Stadium, and the Homecoming game. Fan enthusiasm and spirit were not dampened during the rainy game, which included presentations to the Homecoming King and Queen, the Homecoming runners-up, and the parents of senior football players. To complete the week, a Mendel bi-level set was held for everyone to "cut loose." The Monarch's Homecoming was truly a live and spirited affair.

4. Sean Carter, Richard Johnson, and Nolan Lane: "Which way to the Homecoming Queen Contests?"
5. The Pep Club shows their spirit in their own way.
6. Ernest Love and Rodney Reynolds get the team fired up.

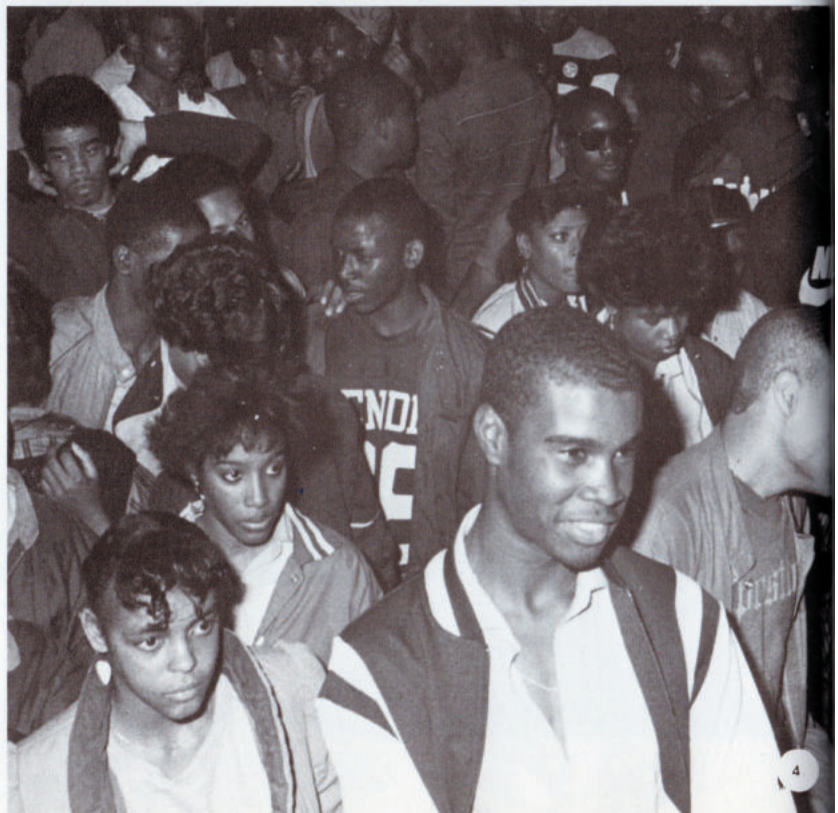

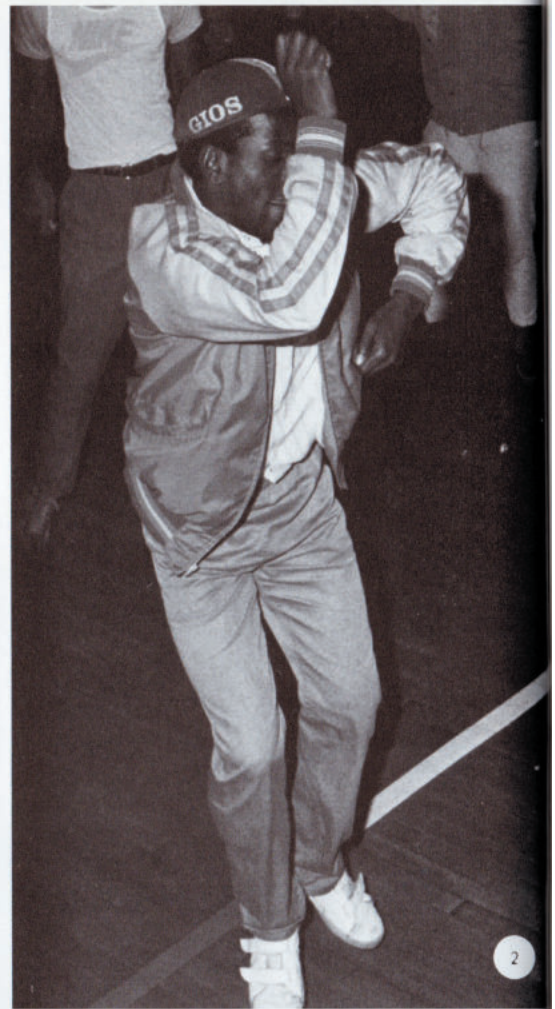

Saturday Night Fever

Saturday Night Fever, a 1979 release starring John Travolta who said "strut your stuff" and "go for what you know," featured guys meeting girls and girls meeting guys with everyone inspired by the music of their favorite party place and dancing, dancing, dancing . . .

Students from the city and the suburbs frequent Mendel's bi-level sets on Saturday nights where they "strut their stuff." Saturday nights find people in long lines outside the Mendel gym waiting to get in on packed inside dancing.

A Mendel party brings out both sexes ready to party and meet people or renew acquaintances. This year Mendel saw impersonators of Michael Jackson and Prince as a special treat during one of the sets. Amateur DJ competitions, light and sound shows, and special appearances by WBMX's Hot Mix Five added to the live atmosphere. Hundreds of people felt the "fever" every weekend at Mendel, making it the place to party in the eighties.

A Christmas Carol

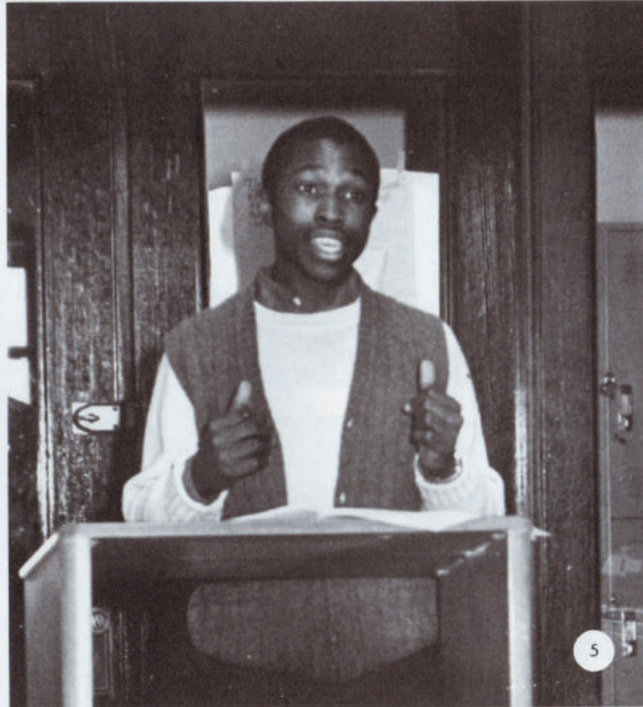

In the Charles Dickens' classic novel and film, A Christmas Carol, Ebenezer Scrooge finds out the true meaning of Christmas through the visits of three ghosts. As one can see by these photos, Mendel students, parents, and teachers do not need to be visited by ghosts to know that Christmas means love. Partygoers dined on a sumptuous feast, and were entertained by the smooth sounds of Mr. Eanes' jazz band, while waiting for a visit from Santa. Special emissaries from the North Pole were on hand to draw the winning raffle tickets. Also in the festivities was a rousing sing-along of Christmas favorites directed by Parents Club Moderator Fr. Mike Schweiffler. The Christmas party clearly brought to life the spirit of that classic novel and movie A Christmas Carol.

The Word

The Word, a dramatic 1955 movie presentation based on the play by Kaj Munk, is a tale of suspense, humor, seriousness, love and honor. These emotions, as well as many others, are brought to life by the contestants in the annual Augustine Speech Festival. First organized by Fr. Jim Sheridan, O.S.A., the Festival provides all Mendel students with the opportunity to do interpretative readings that come from such diverse categories as Serious Prose, Humorous, Dramatic, Children's Literature, and Declamation. Each year the outstanding performances in each category are rewarded, culminating in the Fr. Durant Award, given to the most accomplished speaker. This year, Sr. Bill Fleshman took those honors, followed closely by Jr. Rodney Lewis. Other upperclassmen finalists included Victor Eaton, Gregory Perry and David Notree. In the underclassmen competition sophomore winners were Brandon Moore, Marlowe Cribbs, Cordell Hill, Bruce Collum and Ernest Frazier. Freshman winners were Joseph Cook, Dwayne Marshall, James White, Rodney Lacey and Jeff Brown.

1. Fr. Durant Award winner Bill Fleshman gives his stirring interpretation of Rev. Jesse Jackson's speech from the 1984 Democratic National Convention.
2. David Notree smoothly recites the story of the Creation for children of all ages.
3. Mr. Curtin, Ms. Kearney, and Ms. Seifert enjoy the competition.
4. SPEECH FESTIVAL FINALISTS AND JUDGES — V. Earon, Mr. Ken James, B. Fleshman, Ms. Sharon Kearney, Fr. Stobba, G. Perry, Mr. Steve Wroblecki, R. Lewis, and D. Notree.
5. Rodney Lewis' reading of the Langston Hughes' piece is a thumbs-up performance.
6. Gregory Perry has successfully affected all the mannerisms of Richard Pryor.

The Big Chill

The Big Chill, a 1983 release, focused on a group of people gathered together for a weekend of wistful memories and fun. The 1985 Mendel Winterfest was the same type of gathering, especially for nostalgic Seniors who recalled the many special moments and activities they have participated in during the past four years. The deep freeze of a Chicago February could not put a chill on the spirits of students as they enjoyed a fun-filled week of activities that included a slam-dunk contest, relay races, and pool tournaments. Winterfest was highlighted by the crowning of the Queen and her court and an exciting basketball game against Fenwick which was followed by the famous Mendel sets on both Friday and Saturday nights.

Breaking Away

Breaking Away, a low-budget film that became a box-office smash, depicted a group of small-town underdogs constantly belittled by and in confrontation with an awesome adversary — the student body of Indiana University. The hometown boys, led by Dennis Christopher, overcome stiff competition to rise to the top in a European-style bicycle race. Less gifted in many ways than their opponents, these young men gave all they had to become champions . . .

The 1984 varsity track team at Mendel, our own hometown favorites, had the least amount of talent of any recent team in Mendel's history, but they produced the most. The varsity made up for its weak spots with hard work and dedication. The 1984 track team had several of its members, including Curtis Hagens, Chris Gholston, and Malcolm Davis, qualify for the IHSA state track championships. With the return of these fine athletes as well as a number of other talented track men, 1985 should see the Monarchs breaking away from the competition.

2. TEAM CAPTAINS — (Clockwise From Top): Thomas Frazier, Derrick Golden, Reginald Patterson, and Gilbert Ellis.
3. Curtis Hagens explodes from the starting blocks.
4. Chris Gholston is the perfect picture of concentration.
5. And they're off! Ted Pendleton makes his move at the sound of the gun.
6. "Reach!" grunts Robert McGriff as he hands the baton to Joe Collum.

1. James Debardeleben gives that extra push as Reggie Williams closes in.
2. Kerry Fortenberry clears the high bar with room to spare!
3. Coach Adams checks the results while Darin Gater looks on.
4. Sean Barker prepares for the winning jump.
5. To the victors go the spoils!

Too Hot to Handle

TOO HOT TO HANDLE . . . Starring Clark Gable, centers on the exotic and exciting life of reporting. While the life of the 1984 Frosh-Soph Track Team may not have been exotic, it was certainly exciting. Proving too hot to handle, our young beginners dominated the Catholic League by taking the Frosh-Soph title. The team was led by Malcolm Davis, Darrell Bolton, Tony Daniel, Charles Collins, James Debardelaben, and Levia Hoppszollern. This goes to show that there is no "I" in the word "team."

Baseball. America's favorite pastime. A sport popularized by Robert Redford's role as Roy Hobbs in The Natural in which he portrayed a pitcher of phenomenal success.

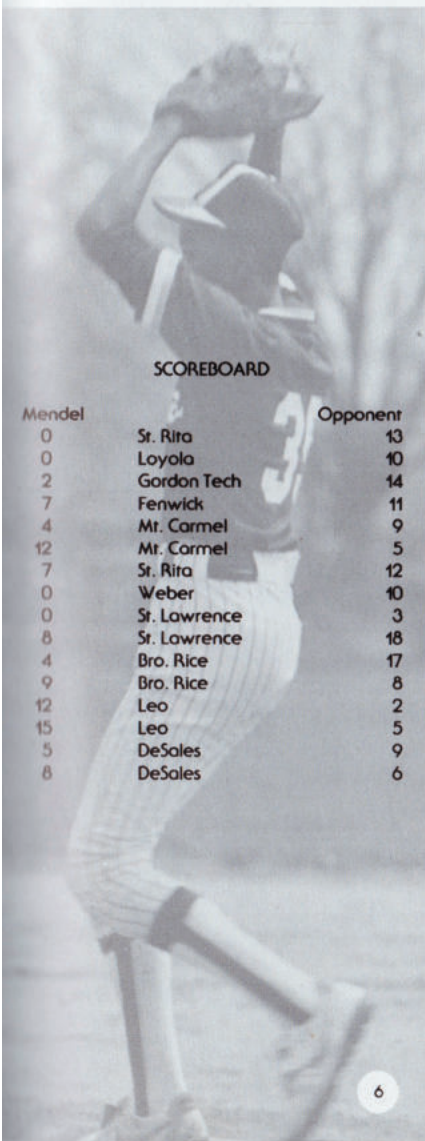

Mendel's baseball team saw growing success during the '84 season and proved to be a "natural." The highlights of the season included a 6-5 comeback victory over Loyola in the season opener and back to back victories over highly rated Br. Rice and St. Rita. The Monarchs figure to improve on their 10-15-2 record with six returning starters. Coach Mike Manderino is very optimistic about the '85 season.

All the Way Home, a 1963 release about a family returning home, is reminiscent of the 1984 Mendel Frosh-Soph baseball team. The Mendel team was a close-knit family that faced a lot of traditionally tough Catholic League teams. The Frosh-Sophs ran all the way home to win several key victories during their season, including a 12-5 victory over Mt. Carmel and a 12-2 trouncing of Leo. The Monarchs showed consistency and the future looks bright.

In a 1976 Olympic documentary entitled Running Brave, Actor Robby Benson portrayed a young Cherokee distance runner who overcame adversity and discrimination to win the 5,000 meters . . .

The 1984 varsity cross country team ran brave and worked hard throughout a rough season. The Monarchs braved blistering heat, chilling winds, and freezing rains to become the first team in Mendel's history to qualify for the state finals in Peoria. This was a year of firsts for the team as they won three major invitationals and went undefeated in dual meets for the first time. The Monarchs were led by captains Thomas Frazier and Rodney Chambers. Chambers, the team's Most Valuable Runner, was supported by a strong pack. Freshman Ramel Werner was rewarded for running brave and winning the Catholic League freshman division by being elevated to the varsity. Second year coach Mike Garcia, who helped turn the program into a successful one, also braved the trials and tribulations of the Monarch's best season. The future is promising as the Monarchs return five of the top seven runners.

Triumph of the Will, a 1934 film depicting the high aspirations of Germany after World War I and their physical efforts to "come out on top," is reminiscent of the type of season that Mendel's 1984 Frosh-Soph cross-country team had . . .

Mendel's Frosh-Soph team was one that used its willpower and determination to become triumphant. The team did exceptionally well overcoming bad weather, inexperience, and "first meet jitters." The sophomore team placed fifth in the Catholic League Championships. Runners, such as Tony Daniels and James Debardeleben, were elevated to the varsity level. On the freshman level, the Monarchs triumphed because of dedication and a willingness to "learn the ropes." The freshman team placed second in the Catholic League Championships behind Ramel Werner, who finished in first place and a third-place finish from Lawrence Love. The future looks promising with a large number of freshmen and sophomores returning not only to gain valuable varsity experience, but to become triumphant champions once again.

Mendel's varsity football squad used their 1984 season as a year for learning "All the Right Moves" and techniques of togetherness and determination, as well as some of the "Facts of Life." Coach Wilson, new this year, helped the team learn from their mistakes. The lessons he emphasized were as valid off the field as they were on. We are hoping Coach Wilson and his team have a more successful season next year when the scores will more clearly reflect the goals and determination of the team.

1984 Freshman Football Team

The Longest Yard

The Longest Yard, starring Burt Reynolds, was a 70's comedy in which prison inmates good naturedly took on the guards in a football game. The film gets its name from a scene that depicted how the gain of even one small yard takes time, effort and determination.

The freshman and sophomore football teams at Mendel also learned how to take the gains one yard at a time. The sophs, better than their 1-8 record might indicate, provided spectators with some thrills as they beat CVS 16-8 and lost a close one in overtime to DeLa Salle, 6-0. The freshmen, 2-7, enjoyed decisive victories over Marist and Homewood-Flossmoor. The fresh-soph teams gained necessary experience and increased their desire to participate in the Mendel football traditions.

Fast Break, a recent basketball release, starred Gabe Kaplan as the head coach of a team of talented but underrated players such as "Swish," "Preacher," and "Doc." Overcoming major obstacles and turning what looked to be a losing season into a victorious one enabled Kaplan's team to be recognized as the champions they were.

The 1984-85 Mendel basketball team started the season unrated and virtually unrecognized by the city pollsters, but they, too, overcame many obstacles to set the record straight. First year head coach Mike Manderino and his team provided fans with many memorable moments, including a 2 point victory over highly rated Benet Academy at the Proviso West Tournament and a 21 point blowout of 1984 Catholic League Champs Weber. Perhaps the finest effort of the season came on January 12th as the Monarchs upset 3rd ranked and previously unbeaten Providence-Sr. Mel by a score of 67-57. Named the WLS-7UP Basketball Team of the Week for this accomplishment, the Monarch cagers received the recognition that was their due.

One on One

One on One, a 70's release, starred Robbie Benson as a highly recruited high school player who winds up in a large college and is treated badly. He learns to deal with his problems and misfortunes as a college freshman. Mendel's Sophs too, worked their way to the top. Led by rookie coach, William Hawkins, a Mendel Alumnus, the Sophs survived a difficult schedule facing Prov.-St. Mel, Simeon, Holiday Tournaments, and traditionally rough Catholic league rivals . . .

The Dirty Dozen

The Dirty Dozen was the story of twelve courageous commandos led by Lee Marvin on a suicide mission. Each man on the team underwent rigorous training and conditioning in order to develop specific abilities and have a successful mission.

Mendel's own Dirty Dozen was the varsity wrestling team. The wrestling team was another tough and courageous unit that was just as effective in its work. Each member of the twelve weight classes held his own and did what was necessary to come out on top. Led by their own commander-in-chief, Coach Tom Rossiano, the grapplers posted a season record of 12-4 with a fourth place finish in the Catholic League Championships. Other highlights included a third place finish at the eight team IHSA regional at Marist. Members that qualified for the IHSA sectional at Bloom Trail included Vasil Robinson, Kenneth Harper, Charles Reasonova, Edward Coleman, Tracy Brown, and Willie Mitchell. Edward Coleman, wrestling in the 185 lb. weight class, became the first Mendel wrestler to qualify for the state finals in Champaign, Ill. in six years.

Great Expectations

Great Expectations, released in 1946, was based on the book by Charles Dickens. It was about a young man named Pip who had "great expectations" for his life and it detailed how he hoped to achieve them.

During their year of learning, the 1985 Frosh-Soph wrestlers also had "great expectations." These goals were achieved as our young wrestlers matured both as men and as athletes. This was a good year for the junior wrestling squad. With new coaches and young members who were willing to learn, the intense practices really paid off in the end. During the course of the season, the Frosh-Sophs placed first in the St. Francis Invitational and finished with a dual meet record of 11-4.

Strike!

In Eisenstein's film Strike (1924), the director stressed individualism, spirit, and the will to succeed. Just as the laborers in Strike strive to obtain a higher level of personal happiness, so does Mendel's Bowling team. At every practice and competition, the bowlers try to recapture and surpass their all-time high scores. Their victories are tokens of what has been accomplished through hard work and long practices. Their rewards are trophies, higher seedings, and a better self-esteem.

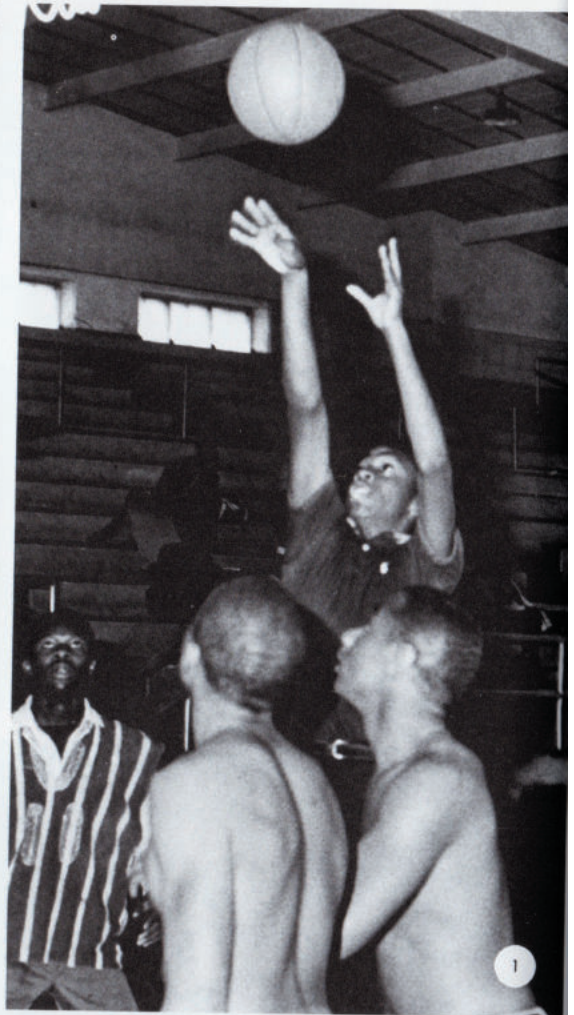

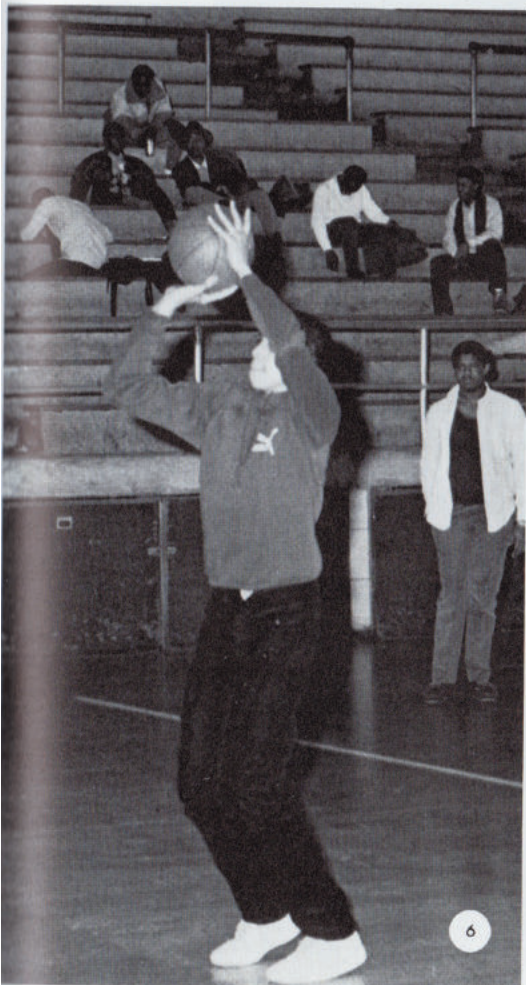

1. George Kidd concentrates on his throw.
2. Coach Thomas — an example of the perfect form.
3. Steven Taylor (standing) and George Kidd (seated) tell Brian Strubblefield, "Mark that strike!"
4. The 1984-85 Mendel Bowling Team consisted of: Seated, (l-r): T. Eccleston, M. Woods, E. Kizart. Standing, (l-r): G. Kidd, B. Strubblefield, B. Johnson (capt.), T. Wilson, S. Taylor, P. Dixon, M. Koonce.
5. Tyson Wilson stares at the pins, awaiting their fate.
6. Everett Kizart sends the ball for a strike!

A Fish That Saved Pittsburgh

1. Sophomores get serious about their intramural basketball.
2. These freshmen relax during lunch time, entertained by the intramural competition.
3. The Ice Blue Ice defense, usually alert and ready for action, relaxes between plays.
4. Billy Fleshman pushes for extra yardage.
5. Larry McDonald puts the moves on his opponent.
6. A freshman demonstrates his perfect free throw shot.

In the movie A Fish That Saved Pittsburgh, ex-professional, college, and high school basketball players who had lost the desire to play basketball except for fun were called together to organize a new type of competitive team. This movie coincides perfectly with the Mendel Intramural program. Here, ex-grammar school, freshman, sophomore, and varsity athletes, as well as those who like to play just for the thrill of the sport, organized themselves into competitive skillful teams. The intramural program gives students a break from the regular workaday routine, and it gives every student the opportunity to learn firsthand the thrill of making the winning shot.

To the Students, Faculty, and Friends of Mendel, I hope you've enjoyed this latest edition of the Monarch. This 1984-85 school year has been good to us all. It has been rewarding, fulfilling, and fun.

It seemed like only yesterday that I, along with the class of '85, arrived at this institution. We had hopes, prayers, and thoughts about the future in the backs of our minds. We strived for our dreams for four years, and thank God they've been answered.

I personally would like to thank Ms. Cheryl Seifert who pushed the Monarch Staff for excellence and cooperation. Compiling this yearbook wasn't easy, but it was worth the effort.

On behalf of the Yearbook staff, I would like to thank our principal Fr. Joseph Stobba and the Faculty for the leadership and guidance they've shown us all throughout our Mendel careers. I would also like to thank the coaches and moderators of various organizations for their cooperation.

Ms. Cheryl Seifert Moderator

A special thanks goes to Victor Powell and Powell studios for their work in photography. And last but not least, Ken Nemsick of Taylor Publishing Co. His help was greatly appreciated on this edition of the Monarch.

I hope that the excellence will continue here at Mendel, and that this particular yearbook and theme may make others see why we, the students are a family. Keep the faith and reach for the stars.

Sincerely, Christopher Allen Lavizzo Editor-in-Chief and the 1984-85 Monarch Staff
